

2nd International Doctoral Seminar in Law

Seminar topic: COMPARATIVE METHODOLOGY AND EU LAW IN DOCTORAL RESEARCH

Academic coordinator: Professor Marieta Safta, Doctoral Supervisor

Special guest:

Tresi Ndreca

Doctoral Candidate in Comparative Public Law at the University of Milan

Tresi Ndreca is a third-year PhD Candidate in Comparative Public Law. She graduated with a thesis on EU accession processes and judicial reforms in the Western Balkans, topics on which she continues to conduct research and deliver lectures as a Teaching Assistant in Comparative Public Law (having previously served as a Teaching Assistant in Constitutional Law). Her doctoral research operates at the forefront of comparative environmental law, specifically examining Extended Producer Responsibility (EPR) regimes in the fashion and textile industry. Guided by an introductory chapter on comparative legal methodology and top-down EU integration as its fil rouge, her thesis incorporates sustainable development and ESG criteria as an essential corollary framework. Her project analyzes the interplay between EU regulatory frameworks and domestic legal autonomy, offering a comparative study of pioneer jurisdictions — France and the Netherlands — alongside the Italian legal system. In addition to her academic work, she is a practicing attorney and legal consultant specializing in environmental sustainability, ESG compliance, and the circular economy, combining comparative methodology with practical industry insights.

All those interested are warmly invited to participate.
